Learning Focus

Students explore the making of The Silver Sea and draw on the theme of this story to write their own story about an adventure they have been on or another significant experience in their life. Students extend their learning by writing a 'media release' to promote the publication of their story.

Sequence of Content

Year 7 and 8 students:

- Plan, draft and publish imaginative, informative and persuasive texts, selecting aspects of subject matter and particular language, visual, and audio features to convey information and ideas (ACELY1725)
- Use a range of software, including word processing programs, to confidently create, edit and publish written and multimodal texts (ACELY1728)
- Create imaginative, informative and persuasive texts that raise issues, report events and advance opinions, using deliberate language and textual choices, and including digital elements as appropriate (ACELY1736)
- Use a range of software, including word processing programs, to create, edit and publish texts imaginatively (ACELY1738)

Learning Intention

We are learning to:

- Use our own experiences to create and publish an imaginative story to engage a selected audience.

Success Criteria

I can:

- Create an imaginative story and publish a children's book that draws on my own experiences and inspiration for writing such a story.

Activity

Students select one of the different football codes (Australian Rules, Rugby League or Soccer) and take on the role as a famous player.

As a famous player (students) have been asked to be an ambassador for Footy Colours Day and write a children's book about an adventure they have been on or another significant experience in their life.

As a class, have a copy of The Silver Sea for students to read and watch The Making of The Silver Sea (Affirm Press). Click here to view.

Use the below information that has been edited from the Teacher Notes (Affirm Press) to develop a shared understanding of the story as well as highlighting the connection between how this book was created and the aim of Footy Colours Day.

The Story

Created by Alison Lester and Jane Godwin in collaboration with the children of The Royal Children's Hospital Melbourne, The Silver Sea follows two children on an adventure under the ocean.

The authors spent over a year visiting The Royal Children's Hospital and running workshops in different styles of painting and drawing. Each page is a collage of the artwork created by the children as well as Alison's character sketches and backgrounds.

"My friend Alison Lester and I volunteer each month at the Royal Children's Hospital in Melbourne. During 2017, we made this book with the young patients at the hospital. Alison and I wrote the text, and all the kids painted the artworks, then Alison and I put them together. We had a great time making the book, and it was lots of fun working with all the kids at the hospital."

The story behind the book reminds readers of the value of working together. Students can see the way different illustrations complement one another and understand that bringing different people together can make a project both richer and more exciting.

The Theme

The Silver Sea celebrates the joy of exploration and adventure. The story features two characters who go on a journey and discover all kinds of new things about the world under the sea. It highlights the excitement of the new experiences that happen when you step outside your comfort zone. Another theme is the return to reality after an adventure.

The book showcases the sense of freedom and comfort that can be found by connecting with nature. The children in this story – and the children who helped to create it – find happiness by embracing nature – both the scary and beautiful aspects.

Our inspiration in creating The Silver Sea

The authors were inspired by the idea that splashing in the ocean would be an energising image for the children in hospital, and they wanted to provide that same escape through their workshops and through this story. It was also important that there were no adults in this story, and that the characters had power in a way that the children might not feel they do when they are in hospital.

"We wanted a story that would take the kids out of the world of the hospital, into the dreamy world of the ocean. Whenever we talked with kids about their lives outside of the hospital, they seemed to really enjoy this opportunity to remember and look forward to things that they loved – and for most Australian children, the beach is such a symbol of joy, holidays, sunshine and freedom.”

Both authors wanted this story to reflect the journey of a child visiting the hospital; there are aspects that might be frightening but ultimately it is a very reassuring journey. They hope that many children will enjoy this book, and that the children who helped create it will feel very proud of what they've achieved.

The Silver Sea was launched as part of The Royal Children's Hospital Melbourne Good Friday Appeal at Easter, 2018. All proceeds from the sale of the book go to The Education Institute at the Royal Children's Hospital.

1. Discuss the story and inspiration in creating this book.
2. The children in this story have a wonderful time on their adventure. As a class, share any adventures or similar experiences students might have had such as a holiday or event they could use as an inspiration for a story.
3. Drawing inspiration from the theme of this book and how this book was created, students select one of the different football codes (Australian Rules, Rugby League or Soccer) and take on the role as a famous player.
4. As a famous player (students) have been asked to be an ambassador for Footy Colours Day and are to write a children's book about an adventure they have been on or another significant experience in their life.

Note: Students could use their choice of digital resources and use other online communication tools such as a class blog or a shared online learning forum used by the school or classroom teacher to create and publish their book.

Extension Activity

(In the News ... has been announced as a Footy Colours Day Ambassador)

Students are to create a 'media release' that can be used to accompany the publication of their book and to promote their role as a Footy Colours Day Ambassador.

Students are to write an 'Author Biography' that includes a brief history of their playing career (team, major achievements) and what it means to them being a Footy Colours Day Ambassador. Other information is to include a brief description of the book and the inspiration for their story.

Students can visit the Our Ambassadors section in the 'About Us' tab of our website for an example of what to write. Click here to access. More information about the Footy Colours Day Ambassadors can be viewed in the 'News & Media' section of our website. Click here to access.

Various football players have written children's books in recent years. Students may wish to learn more about these books and view other useful information to assist with this activity.
