Learning Focus

Students explore the making of The Silver Sea and draw on the theme of this story as well as their own life experiences to create an imaginative story. Students extend their learning by writing a 'media release' to promote Footy Colours Day and the publication of their story.

Sequence of Content

Year 9 and 10 students:

- Create literary texts, including hybrid texts, that innovate on aspects of other texts, for example by using parody, allusion and appropriation (ACELT1773)
- Create literary texts that reflect an emerging sense of personal style and evaluate the effectiveness of these texts (ACELT1814)
- Create imaginative texts that make relevant thematic and intertextual connections with other texts (ACELT1644)

Learning Intention

We are learning to:

- Create and publish an imaginative text which draws on our own experiences and relates to a selected theme.

Success Criteria

I can:

- Create and publish an imaginative text that draws on my own experiences and inspiration for writing such a story.

Activity

Students have been selected to be a 'school ambassador' for Footy Colours Day.

As part of this role, students have been asked to write a children's book about their role as 'school ambassador' and use the inspiration from a significant event in their life to connect with young children who may be in hospital or unwell.

As a class, have a copy of The Silver Sea for students to read and watch The Making of The Silver Sea (Affirm Press). Click here to view.

Use the below information that has been edited from the Teacher Notes (Affirm Press) to develop a shared understanding of the story as well as highlighting the connection between how this book was created and the aim of Footy Colours Day.

The Story

Created by Alison Lester and Jane Godwin in collaboration with the children of The Royal Children's Hospital Melbourne, The Silver Sea follows two children on an adventure under the ocean.

The authors spent over a year visiting The Royal Children's Hospital and running workshops in different styles of painting and drawing. Each page is a collage of the artwork created by the children as well as Alison's character sketches and backgrounds.

"My friend Alison Lester and I volunteer each month at the Royal Children's Hospital in Melbourne. During 2017, we made this book with the young patients at the hospital. Alison and I wrote the text, and all the kids painted the artworks, then Alison and I put them together. We had a great time making the book, and it was lots of fun working with all the kids at the hospital. Here's an interview we did about the process."

The story behind the book reminds readers of the value of working together. Students can see the way different illustrations complement one another and understand that bringing different people together can make a project both richer and more exciting.

The Theme

The Silver Sea celebrates the joy of exploration and adventure. The story features two characters who go on a journey and discover all kinds of new things about the world under the sea. It highlights the excitement of the new experiences that happen when you step outside your comfort zone. Another theme is the return to reality after an adventure.

The book showcases the sense of freedom and comfort that can be found by connecting with nature. The children in this story – and the children who helped to create it – find happiness by embracing nature – both the scary and beautiful aspects.

Our inspiration in creating The Silver Sea

The authors were inspired by the idea that splashing in the ocean would be an energising image for the children in hospital, and they wanted to provide that same escape through their workshops and through this story. It was also important that there were no adults in this story, and that the characters had power in a way that the children might not feel they do when they are in hospital.

"We wanted a story that would take the kids out of the world of the hospital, into the dreamy world of the ocean. Whenever we talked with kids about their lives outside of the hospital, they seemed to really enjoy this opportunity to remember and look forward to things that they loved – and for most Australian children, the beach is such a symbol of joy, holidays, sunshine and freedom."

Both authors wanted this story to reflect the journey of a child visiting the hospital; there are aspects that might be frightening but ultimately it is a very reassuring journey. They hope that many children will enjoy this book, and that the children who helped create it will feel very proud of what they've achieved.

The Silver Sea was launched as part of The Royal Children's Hospital Melbourne Good Friday Appeal at Easter, 2018. All proceeds from the sale of the book go to The Education Institute at the Royal Children's Hospital.

1. Discuss the story and inspiration in creating this book.
2. Click here to visit the Footy Colours Day website and discuss questions such as:
 - o What is Footy Colours Day?
 - o Where does the money go?
3. Discuss the aim of Footy Colours Day and the significance of such an event in helping the lives of young children with cancer.
4. Click here to visit the Our Ambassadors section in the 'About Us' tab of our website to learn more about the 2019 Footy Colours Day Ambassadors.
5. More information about the Footy Colours Day Ambassadors can be viewed in the 'News & Media' section of our website. Click here to access.
6. Drawing inspiration from how this book was created, students use the inspiration from a significant event in their life to write a children's book about their role as a 'school ambassador'. A key feature of their story could be either the main character being in hospital or them visiting other young children in hospital.

Note: Students could use their choice of digital resources and use other online communication tools such as a class blog or a shared online learning forum used by the school or classroom teacher to create and publish their book.

Extension Activity

(In the News ... will be our school Footy Colours Day Ambassador)

Students are to create a 'media release' that can be used to announce their role as a 'school ambassador' and to promote Footy Colours Day.

Students are to write an 'Author Biography' that includes a brief history of their playing career (team, major achievements) and what it means to them being selected to be a Footy Colours Day School Ambassador. Other information is to include a brief description of the book and the inspiration for their story.

Various football players have written children's books in recent years. Students may wish to learn more about these books and view other useful information to assist with this activity.
